

HISTORICAL FICTION FRONT PAGE PROJECT

You will be designing a front page of a newspaper based on your Historical Fiction Independent Reading book. The name of the newspaper and all articles, features, and "extras" should relate to your book and reflect a close reading of the text. In addition, the project should exhibit both creativity and care.

NAME OF NEWSPAPER, LOCATION AND PUBLICATION DATE--NAMEPLATE REQUIRED

Nameplate--Create a nameplate that spans the entire width of the top of the page.

Example of a nameplate:

The nameplate should include the title of the newspaper, the location, and a date of publication. All of these should relate to your book. Sometimes nameplates also include a teaser or tagline to draw in the reader. For example, the one above says "New York's Hometown Newspaper." You can include one of these if you like.

ARTICLES AND FEATURES--ALL 5 ITEMS ARE REQUIRED

Summary--At the top of the page, write a plot summary of your book in several well-developed paragraphs. Include the title of the book and its author (in bold) and make sure you answer the who, what, where, when and why of newspaper reporting. Include a headline that catches the attention of the reader.

Setting--Describe some of the most interesting information you learned about the setting (both the location and time period) of your Historical Fiction book. This article must include several paragraphs (not lists or bullet points) and should be well-organized. You may do additional research, if necessary, to fully explain the information you choose to share. Include a headline that catches the attention of the reader.

Character--Write a brief article about the main character. This could be in interview form, an obituary, or any other format you desire as long as you include who the character is, what s/he did, and any additional interesting details that give us a full picture of this character. Include a headline that catches the attention of the reader.

Original Artwork--Include some form of original (made by you) artwork. This can be an illustration of a character or scene from the book, an editorial cartoon, or a 3-4 panel comic strip related to the content of your book. Any kind of artwork must include a title that catches the attention of the reader. If you include an illustration (rather than a cartoon or comic strip), you must include a "picture caption" so it is clear how your artwork connects to your book.

Advertisement--Create an advertisement for a location in your book or an object in your book that has special importance. For either, include some type of picture that relates to the place or object (such as a photo or illustration) and enough information in the text of the advertisement so that it is clear how it relates to your book.

ARTICLES AND FEATURES--YOUR CHOICE [include at least one (1) of the following]

Letter to the Editor--Choose a significant issue in your book and take a position on it. Compose a letter that represents your understanding of the issue and how you feel about it. Include a headline.

Book Review--Write a review of your book using the techniques you mastered back when you wrote about your Jewish Book Month book. Be sure to fully explain what you like or dislike about the book. Incorporate at least one quotation from the book to support your opinion. Include a headline.

Sports--Write an article in which you describe a conflict in your book as if it was a sports competition. Include box scores, photos, or illustrations to make the "competition" come to life. Be sure to include enough details so that your reader learns about the conflict from your book and understands how the "sporting event" represents this conflict. Include a headline.

EXTRAS--YOUR CHOICE [include at least (1) of the following]

Advice Column--Pretend at least two characters in your book wrote letters to an advice columnist seeking advice about important problems in the book. Write these two letters along with a response to each letter that explains how each problem is solved. Include a headline.

Crossword Puzzle--Use words or events from the story to create a crossword puzzle with a minimum of 10 clues. A small image of the puzzle with the solution should be included somewhere on the front page. Include a headline.

Weather--Describe the weather for a particular day (or series of days) as it relates to your book. Do not just list the weather but include a brief explanation of why the weather situation is important to understanding an event that takes place in your book. Include a headline.

Classified Ads--Create a series of at least five "help-wanted" ads, "lost and found" ads, and/or "for sale" ads related to some aspect of your book. Include a headline.

IMPORTANT REMINDER

Like a newspaper, all the space on your front page should be filled with content. Once you include all of the required elements described above, you may include any other newspaper-related content in order to fill the page. Everything you include must relate in some way to your Independent Reading book or the historical setting in which it takes place; "random stuff" is not acceptable. Be certain to proofread carefully. A project containing more than a few grammatical/spelling errors will be returned for revision.

IMPORTANT DATES

Finish reading your Independent Reading book by: Monday, February 23rd

"Match" above requirements with Ms. C-R's example on _____

Idea Sharing about Newspaper Book Report Project on _____

Submit Layout Plan for Peer Review on _____

Submit Layout Plan for Teacher Review on _____

Submit Summary Article for Teacher Review on _____

Submit Setting Article for Teacher Review on _____

Submit Character Article for Teacher Review on _____

Submit Final Copy of Newspaper Book Report Project on _____